Subject: Microsoft Suit

I have written to you before on this issue and I support the proposed settlement that has been reached with the DOJ and half of the states. You should close this case out by supporting this settlement.

AOL has now muddied the water. The term "cry baby" comes to mind when I look at what they are trying to do. AOL needs to receive two messages. "Do good in the market place and you will be rewarded" and "The courts should not bail you out if you fail in the market place." AOL needs to receive both of these messages loud and clear. I am thinking of changing from AOL as my ISP.

Please, let Microsoft get on with the business of providing quality products at ever decreasing prices to the consuming public.

I have no strong relationship with either MS or AOL. I probably own some of each stock in index funds.

Very truly yours,
